On the basis of data for the year 1989-90, drugs with a turnover of Rs. 400 lakhs or more, having market competition and drugs with a turnover of Rs. 100 lakhs or above but below Rs. 400 lakhs, having no monopoly situation have, therefore, not come under price control.

(b) Against 142 drugs in price control under DPCO'87, presently there are 76 drugs in price control under DPCO'95. However, these 76 drugs include 21 drugs which were having very high turnover but were outside price control earlier. Studies conducted from time to time after coming into force of DPCO, 1995 indicate that increase of medicine price is generally not across the board and abnormal. There is also decrease in prices in some cases.

(c) Reconsideration is dependent upon availability of updated data as provided for in para 22.7.2 (v) of 'Modifications in Drug Policy, 1986'.
